Governor Herter, like President Eisenhower, has not stood on the issues involved. No veto by the Governor has been overridden during the legislative session now dragging in wearisome fashion toward its end. In fact, supporters of the measures he turned back did not come even close to passing any of them over his objection.

A number of political observers expressed the belief at the start of the year that chaos and confusion would mark the 1955 session of the Massachusetts Legislature. The Democrats were in complete control of the House of Representatives. The Republicans held a slim two-vote margin in the State Senate. The alarmists saw Governor Herter blocked and frustrated at every turn.

It hasn't turned out that way at all. An old diplomat and a former legislator himself, Mr. Herter has managed to live and to work with the Democratic House. POLITICAL OVERTONES (Continued on Page 4)

When the Senate has going the support of the Democratic House than of the Republican Senate. in an opposite direction from Mr. Herter, it has been because of a misunderstanding.

The House periodically has indulged in flurries of partisan politics. as might be expected. Governor Herter usually has waited for them to subside rather than meet them in head-on battle, the result of which meant little.

ed to anything. That one set in motion a probe of the State's prison system by the House rules committee. But it was overthousand nine hundred and fifty-shadowed by a similar probe conducted by the Governor's Wessell Committee.

(G) au4-11-18

The Governor has been dealer to the conducted by t

The Governor has had to wait a long time for action on some measures, as the case of the extension of the temporary taxes needed to balance the State government, but that was due principally to the action of one House committee chairman.

One reason the wheels of the legislative government on Beacon Hill have turned in orderly fashion for the last six months is that Michael F. Skerry of Medford has proved to be an exceptionally good Speaker of the House and Repre-sentative John J. Toomey of Cambridge has been an able chairman of the House ways and means committee.

Skerry and Toomey have manifested an awareness of their own responsibilities in the key positions they fill. They have refused to support movements they knew to be irresponsible and unsound simply for the purpose of embarrassing the administration.

That brought them unwarranted abuse from some of the loud-mouthed members of their own party and created the impression that there was widespread dissension within the Democratic membership in the House.

Skerry, who is very likely to be nom-iniated by his party as the Democratic candidate for Governor within the next few years, got off to an unsteady start in his role as Speaker of the House This was due more to the failure of the men he named as his top aides in the House to live up to what was expected of them than to his own ability to meet the test confronting him. As the legislative session developed,

Skerry ran the House with a firm hand and displayed outstanding qualities of leadership.

His floor leader, Representative John

F. Thompson of Ludlow, however, had established something of a record for bolting the Democratic party and joining with the Republicans in 1953 and 1954. His new role as a party-line Democrat of unswerving allegiance didn't sit too well on him, and the other House menbers did not accept gracefully his lectured on party loyalty.

Representative James L. O'Dea, Jr., of Lowell, the Democratic whip, is an e .:treme liberal and left-winger, whole views often are in conflict with those of Skerry, a moderate middle-of-the-road Democrat.

O'Dea and Thompson caused much of the friction early in the session as they tried to force reluctant members into line behind such measures as the bill to curb the power of the Attorney General and District Attorneys to tap the wires of criminals.

They made Skerry's task more difficult rather than easier, and they have been the principal exponents of partisan politics in the House. Part of the trouble, doubtless, was that they were overwhelmed by their own sense of importance in the positions where they suddenly found themselves.

Thompson and O'Dea probably could best be classified as minor irritants because of the strain they placed on the eardrums of those forced to listen to them during the session, but they neither accomplished anything of consequence nor stopped any measures of real importance

Probably the two most important bills which Governor Herter vetoed during the year were one calling for the extension of rent control to next April 1 and another providing for a flat $360-a-year pay raise for State employees.

Any impression that there was a con-flict between the Governor and the GOPcontrolled Senate on those two issues is completely erroneous.

The Governor could have stopped either of those measures or any of the others that he vetoed by simply calling in the Republican Senators and telling them what he wanted done, Instead he let the bills go to his desk and assume the responsibility of turning them bac-Governor Herter is opposed to t creases. Even if he favored that prin ple, however, he could not have signed the measure adopted by the Legislature because there was no money to pay it. The legislators themselves knew that theory of flat, across-the-board wage when they voted for the bill, but for political reasons they wanted to put themselves on record as trying to do something for the State workers, and the Gov-ernor accepted the onus of blocking it. As this is written, it appears that a portion of the program for the reform of the State's penal system will be enacted before the close of the present legislative session but that some recommendations will be put off for further study of GOP Support in Congress Key to Ike's Plans

Measures Termed 'Absolutely Vital' Not Enacted . .

President Eisenhower's periodic hints that he will run for reelection next year may stem from his per-al dissatisfaction over his inability during the congressional session just ended to win greater support from members of his own party on legislative matters which he declared to be of "vital" importance.

Reports from Washington declare that the rejection of most of the President's moderate welfare program probably will be a major issue in next year's campaign. From this distance, however, it is difficult to see how either political party can capitalize on such an issue.

The President can hardly accuse the Democrats of sabotaging his program, when a good many Republican congressmen refused to support it. On the other hand, the Democratic strategy-planners can't very well assail the Eisenhower policies as niggardly, while they are op-posed as too liberal by most Southern Democrats.

Started several summers ago as an experiment by the University's Summer Session administration, in an effort to aid toward solving the teacher shortage, the Graduate Workshop in Elementary Education has proven more than popular. Providing actual classroom teaching and discipline condi-tions as it does through the fine cooperation of the Newton-school system, the Workshop gives an intensive course. Its purpose is to help fill the gap for possible teachers who have not had the training in teaching methods, but who otherwise, in education and personality, "fill the bill" as prospective teachers.

THE WORKSHOP gives them fast what they otherwise would have to spend considerable time in acquiring at traditional speed in the usual courses of study. They can continue through the year at a more leisurely pace with part-time graduate study in university courses in education. In the meantime they will be more ready to start teaching this as a result of their sum mer laboratory study.

The teacher shortage is due in part to the rapid rise in school attendance and the fact that industry is hiring women college graduates in larger numbers than ever before.

A Sorry Implication

Why there is any hesitation on the part of the Massachusetts Senate to continue in existence the Massachusetts Crime Commission is beyond the comprehension of every citizen, not to mention the electorate.

Is there something behind this negative action which dares not stand the light of day?

It has been rumored that many sena-tors admit privately that they were "lob-bied" against the measure and that they are reluctant to discuss the tactics

The Senate has been stalling on two proposals advanced by the Crime Commission. One of these would establish a special division of the State Police to concentrate on organized crime. The other would make it mandatory to jail bookies on second and subsequent convictions.

Rep. John F. Zamparelli (D-Medford) who has frequently been at odds with the leadership of his party in the House probably, in the minds of the public at least, gave some concurrence to the public's thoughts when he stated the delay in voting extension of the Crime Commission would be "playing into the hands of the gangsters and every bookie in the Commonwealth." Is that the way the members of the

The Average Working Life

Although the average American gets his first job at a later age than used to be common, and although he typically has more years in retirement, he also, paradoxically, spends many more years on the job. The lengthening of life which has occurred during the present century permits individuals to spend more years in every phase of their life history.

The average boy born in 1950 could expect to spend 17.7 years in the preparatory period before entering the labor force. This is 4 years longer than his counterpart born in 1900 could expect to spend before setting out for his first job. The increasing prosperity of the nation makes it possible for families to keep children in school to a much later age. Also, the increased life expectancy makes it more worth while to give a youth a long period of preparation for his career.

At the other end of the age scale, the average American can now anticipate about 5.9 years in retirement, as compared with only 2.4 years in 1900. It should be explained that these figures include both the conventional retirement at age 65 to which we are now accustomed, and involuntary retirements due to disability, which can occur at any age. In 1900 conventional retirement was almost unknown and practically all men worked until they died or were disabled. It should also be pointed out that the averages include individuals who die before they retire and hence have zero years of retirement.

The most striking change during the half-century under review has been the increase in the working life of the individual. The average male in 1950 could expect to spend almost 10 years more on the job than the average male in 1900. The increase in the length of working life has been from 32.1 years in 1900 to 41.9 in 1950. These averages would be greater except for the fact that they include individuals who die during their working years and hence never reach retirement.

All this has been possible because life expectancy (at birth) has been increased from 48.2 to 65.2 years, thanks to the tremendous advance of medical science. The average man has 17.8 more years of life, of which he spends 4.0 years in additional preparation, 9.8 years in additional working time, and 3.5 years in additional retired life.

In that year the standard work week was 60 hours, and vaca-tions were exceptional. Now the work week has been reduced to 40 hours and paid vacations have become the general

Living Standards

The outstanding characteristic of our economic history is productivity growth. The output per man-hour in America during this century has increased at an average rate of about two percent a year. One hour of a man's effort today produces twice as much as one hour of his father's much harder work. Fifty years ago, machines provided less than 50 per cent of the power used for work; today they supply 95 per cent. The average work week of 60 hours at the turn of the century has dropped to

The purchasing power of today's in-dustrial employee is five times what it was 100 years ago, twice what it was 25 years ago. The industrial employee, more than any other single income bracket, has been responsible for the purchase, in the last five years, of 30 million refrigerators and home freezers, 27 million TV sets, 22 million new cars.

And we Americans today are spending more than $30-billion a year, satisfying our leisure-time, vacation-time, needs!

This summer Americans have, and more will, run afoul of what many firmly believe to be just a racket, the tip. Some will have their vacations spoiled because they were uncertain when to tip and how much.

With more resorts and vacation spots opening up all over the world, and more people taking advantage of them, there will be more hands than ever out for your Tipping has been with us for several hundred years. In the 1700's signs appeared in English pubs suggesting customers pay up "to insure promptness." Later on, "T.I.P." became the gentle hint. Today this is a common meaning for the word tip.

We Live Two Lives

There are 963 weekly newspapers in Canada, with a total circulation of almost 2,500,000. There are a great many more in the United States with an even greater circulation.

The January issue of a recent monthly letter issued by the Royal Bank of Canada was devoted entirely to these Canadian papers and their significance. It said: "Singly or taken together, these weekly newspapers have a great influ-ence on the thought and action of our people.

"Everybody, in a sense, lives two lives; one in a small and the other in a great circle. He belongs by birth or choice to various intimate groups, like his family, his neighborhood, and his cluster of friends. He is also a member of the whole society and he is living within an interdependent system of nations. The weekly newspaper belongs to his intimacy."

The same thing is true of the thousands of United States weekly papers and small-city dailies. They are the running record of the community, and of the individuals, families, enterprises and institutions which created, forged and main-

These Good Young Days

By GEORGE LAWRENCE PARKER

If in this year of 1955 an evangelist should stand at a crowded street corner in one of our American cities and cry out, "Now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation," he would probably be arrested as a disturber of the peace, of such peace at least as we have left to us. Yet in about 750 B. C. Isaiah, the great prophet of Israel, summoned his nation back to hope and to a better life in exactly these terms, "Now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation."

All the signs of the times were against Isaiah. The morals of Jerusalem were at their lowest ebb. Riches and poverty vied with each other in making shambles of human society. The crime wave raged unchecked. Nationally, Israel's existence was threatened by Egypt and Assyria, while the rising power of Babylon presented a worse danger even if deferred for a few years. Yet Isaiah read the signs of his times and unflinchingly reported "Now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation."

It is not important that we declare that the prophet was right or wrong. Two World Wars and several decades of human misery may well confess that he was not wholly right. But it is far more important for us to see that if we include all the factors that he included, he was far more right than wrong. He did not claim that the 8th century B. C. was an open door to a Golden Age. He did claim that his "now" had all the elements that his nation or humanity as a whole, needed in order to create a better world. He saw, as plainly as we can see today, that the myth of "the good old days" is little more than a fiction born out of the imagination.

The optimism that declares any period to be the best period of history is as wrong as is the pessimism that declares any period to be the worst period. Nor does this mean that we must join the neutral-minded people and say "We take what comes and walk a balanced way as well as we can." It means tht "the now" is an acceptable time if we accept its evident possibilities: "the now is a noun of reality, not an adverb of merely elongated time. "Now" comes and goes. "The now" never scuttles off into the bushes of either the past or the future. To Massachusetts Senate want it to be?

If so, an intelligent electorate in the not too distant future, may show many members of the upper branch of the legislature that they are definitely not in accord with any such action. mankind. It is absent-mindedness that threatens us today It is unawareness of the world that is leading us into a misguided and mis-shaped chaos. Few people seem to cellent work which it has started. To do less would be a sorry plight indeed. realize that "the now" is here to stay because it is forever changing and remaking itself, "The now" alone accepts reality as the right to grow, and it accepts freedom to grow. In these two possibilities we find our only hope. They constitute our only day of salvation.

We are on the verge of discovering that faith, religion, culture or knowledge, and science as practiced, form one single and undivided unity. Without that unity and that wholeness men will remain a race of split personalities and will literally "go to pieces." Fragmentism is our persistent enemy, and our wars are schizophrenia.

"The now is an accepted time, and a day of salvation" because of its hint that unity is possible. The details of unity will take untold ages to unfold. The reality of unity cannot escape us, if we accept "The Now."

- Political Overtones -

As the congressmen scattered from Washington, some starting on junkets to Europe, some leaving for vacation spots, others heading for home to rebuild their political fences, the President declared that he considered four of the nine matters which had been sidetracked as "absolutely vital." He listed them as his school construction, highway, health insurance and water resources programs.

President Eisenhower knew better than anyone else that he did not have the united support of the Republican minority in either branch of Congress on any of the matters he labelled as "vital."

He undoubtedly had that in mind and with it probably a sense of frustration over his inability to get greater backing from the conservative element in his own party, when he spoke in somber tones the day after Congress adjourned to an Ohio delegation that waited upon him with a resolution urging that he stand for another term in 1956.

After telling the group from the Buckeye State that as an old army man, the term "duty" was very important to him, he went on to assert that he nevertheless liked to see younger men come forward. The then observed that no Presiforward. Ike then observed that no President ever had reached the age of 70 in the White House, pointing out that if he were re-elected he would be 70 three months before the end of his second term. He also referred to the tremendous physical strain the Presidency places on a man of his age.

This was altogether different from the light-hearted quips he had tossed off during his visit to New Hampshire in June, when he seemed to enjoy confusing his listeners by dropping a hint one day that he was planning to run again and a suggestion the next day that this would be his last term in office.

This was a serious statement, apparently reflecting the President's thinking about his own physical well-being and the toll two and a half years in the White House already have taken. Cold chills raced up and down the spines of Republican politicians who know that without Ike leading the way as the standardbearer their party's prospects would be far from bright in next year's national So great was the alarm within the GOP that the next day President Eisenhower took some of the steam out of the words he had voiced to the Ohio group by declaring that there were a number of factors he could not yet foresee which prevented him from making a final decision now about his political plans.

"What I intended to imply," he said, was that if I now were such an infallible prophet that I could understand all about This week the Graphic is proud to honor John Ruben-stein of 171 Upland road, Newton one can-flung areas of Newton one can-flung areas of Newton one can-stein the stein of Newton one can-stein the stein of Newton one can-stein the stein the world situation, the domestic situa-tion, and my own situation, including the gift of prophecy."

That was a pretty "iffy" statement, and it did not at all sound like what Mr. Eisenhower had tried to imply the day before. But it did serve to reassure and calm the GOP politicos who had sudden visions of disaster at the polls in 1956. Maybe the President didn't mean that his remarks to the Ohio contingent should be construed the way they were at the time. Maybe it was strictly a coincidence that he spoke out about his own age the very day after Congress adjourned with-out enacting the laws he had requested. But it also could be that Mr. Eisen-

He on whether he wanted to run another has served on the committee time for the privilege of assuming the for Newton's first industrial ex- strain, the stress and the disappointment for another four years. He would hardly be human, if it did not have that effect.

Former baseball commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler achieved a remarkable political comeback in winning the Democratic gubernatorial nomination that is tantamount to election in Kentucky over the combined opposition of Senator Alben W. Barkley, Senator Earle Clements and Governor Lawrence Wetherby. Chandler's opponent was Judge Bert

T. Combs, but Combs was almost overlooked in the din of mountain music as Barkley, Clements and Wetherby all threw their political weight into the fray in an unsuccessful battle against the upstart Chandler.

Happy Chandler, who was something of a flop as the high commissioner of organized baseball, undoubtedly knows the formula of song, minstrelsy and wild charges that appeals to Kentuckians, but the returns also proved once again that great vote-getters in their own right can't guarantee shifting their popularity to someone else.

His victory in the hectic race for Kentucky's governorship probably is just a prelude to a battle to regain his old seat in the U. S. Senate. Happy will face sterner competition in that fight, but there is no assurance that his brand of political corn won't take him back to Capitol Hill.

State House observers have now given up the risky business of estimating when the Legislature is likely to wind up its business and adjourn for the year. Prorogation could come in a matter of days, if the stalling was stopped and everyone worked together toward that objective. But that isn't likely to happen.

A handful of legislators in key positions have been responsible for prolonging the proceedings. The great mass of lawmakers, who would like nothing bet-ter than to dispose of the matters awaiting their attention and head for vacation spots, are powerless to do anything about the situation and are forced to sit by in the stuffy, high-ceilinged cham-bers while the legislative wheels turn over with incredible slowness.

The political experts already have begun their long-distance appraisals of the battle that will be fought next year by the Democratic and Republican parties for the control of the next Congress.

Their conclusion is that on paper the Democrats have a better than even chance of maintaining their present grip. on the U.S. Senate, although they temper their predictions with the assertion that it is impossible to foretel how much strength President Eisenhower may swing to his party's candidates, if he runs for another term.

The percentages, however, do seem to favor the Democrats. Seventeen Republican and 15 Democratic Senators will be up for election in 1956. Eight of the Democrats are from Southern States where a Republican would have no chance of reelection, while five of the GOP Senators are from States that are considered securely in the Republican column.

That means that 12 Republicans and only seven Democrats will be running in marginal States where the tide of battle varies and flows from one party to the

Both the Democratic and Republican high commands, however, have cause for concern as they anticipate some of the contests that will be settled at the same time that a President is chosen.

There is no assurance that 76-year-old Democratic Senator Herbert H. Lehman will run again in New York State. He has been pressured to announce his candidacy but has declined to do so. Lehman will face a hard fight, if he does seek reelection, and his age undoubtedly would be made an issue.

A great deal of speculation centers on the battle Wayne Morse will have in Oregon. Originally elected as a Republican, Morse is now a Democrat and will run as one next year. He probably will be op-posed by GOP Governor Paul Patterson, and Republican leaders will go all out in their efforts to defeat him, for politicians aren't supposed to shift from one party to another

Colorful, silver-toned Republican Senator Everett Dirksen faces a hot contest in Illinois, where his opponent may be for-mer Democratic Senate Leader Scott Lucas whom Dirksen unseated in 1950 with the help of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy. The GOP strategy-planners also have some political fences to mend in Wisconsin, where Republican Senator Alexander Wiley will have trouble on his hands unless he can resolve his differences with Joe McCarthy and the latter's organiza-

Figures He's Waited Long Enough!

The long-striding, fast-moving man you see in this picture has made the sight decision at the right time!

For the past year or so, he has been thinking about a Cadillac—and he has finally made up his mind. He is through with compromise and doubt and wonder. This time, he is going after the real thing! And how lucky he is that he made that decision today! For wonderful news of a special nature is waiting for him.

He'll find, for instance, that Cadillac ownership is far more practical now than ever before. He'll learn, in fact, that the lowest-priced Cadillac can be pur-chased for little more than he might expect to pay for a goodly number of the so-called medium-price cars.

He'll also find that his dealer-because of a low used-car inventory—is in a position to offer him a very generous allowance on his present car.

And he'll discover that, because of Cadillac's greatly increased production during the current year, he can take title to his new Cadillac after a surprisingly short waiting period.

And all these special inducements, of course, are in addition to the other great Cadillac virtues—such as legendary dependability and long life . . . remarkable economy of upkeep and operation . . . and traditionally higher resale value.

All in all, he's walking in on the motor car opportunity of a lifetime!

And how about you? Have you been possponing your dreams of a Cadillac?

If so, there's no reason to wait any longer. Come on in and see us. Let us put you behind the wheel of a Cadillac . . . and give you the whole, wonderful story of the "car of cars." We think you, too, will decide that you've waited long enough!

From the experiences of last year, considerable was learned concerning the organization, coordination of efforts, most needed maierials, supplies, equipment and communications. Department heads are working with the Mayor to plan more effectively for handling emergencies expeditiously. Naturally, we all hope no such emergency will arise.

Philmont - 127,000 adventure packed acres It is the largest Scout Camp in the world, located in Northeastern New Mexico, land of enchantment. Over 9,000 Explorers enjoy this ranch in the West each year. During the season, June 10 to Labor Day, over 2,300 boys and their leaders are daily following the trails.

ON PHILMONT lie remains of Indians who lived 1,100 years ago, dating to the prebasket weavers. For 300 years this was Spanish land, for 20. Mexican, then American. The Santa Fe trail ran across this land — Kit Carson lived here - His reconstructed house is now a museum. Lucien Maxwell, once owner of the vast Maxwell land grant (1,740,000 acres) and partner of Kit Carson built a house which the Scouts still use. Waite Phillips chose this land for his ranch and later gave it to the Boy Scouts of America in 1941.

Philmont included nine base camps and many trail camps. The ranch owns 300 head of horses (largest camp herd) and 200 head of burros (largest string in the world). A staff of about 250 maintains the facilities during the season.

Wild life is abundant here. It includes buffalo, elk, mule deer, prong horn antelope, wild turkey, and mountain lion. Here are 177 species of birds, 80 species of mammals, and 27 species of snakes, of which only one - the prairie rattler is dangerous.

While there we experienced the techniques of back-packing, horseback riding, mo-skeet ing boys were from Wellesley: shooting, trout fishing, bait Ralph Abbott, Ted Cady, Jack casting, gold panning, mountain camping, totem pole carving, hiking, dutch oven cooking, burro chasing, wild life

The following day we received burros and began our last week at Philmont. While here at "Cito", Chief Forester Jupson, M.A. demon-strated the different use of axes by a forester and briefly showed how he determined board feet in a tree. Following this, we hiked with him about "Cito", learning about the stage of growth from the rook age to the present. Other groups who come to Philmont will find a wooden platform containing a carved replica of Plymouth Rock, bearing, in

About 8:30 we participted in the campfire led by the ran-gers. We recalled two such campfires of song and merri-ment which we had enjoyed at Abreu and Porcupine. We slept late on Sunday, getting up for church on the hill. We left about noon, heading for Pueblano. It was a fairly easy journey, a distance of eight miles. Here we washed clothes, ate, and again took part in a country of the cou part in a campfire. During the day some of us helped in a conservation project. These projejcts included erosion dams, clearing of water ways, trout dams, and maintenance of fire fighting equipment.

OUR LAST DAY of hiking from Pueblano to Ponil was a "walk". We stopped to study rock and erosion formations "Sons of Eliot" gational Church, Fall River. The service will be held in the rock and erosion formations and plant life. That night we cooked buffalo steaks and french fries, deliciously pre-pared by the ranger at Bent (West Ponil). On Friday we saddled horses and rode six-teen miles through the back woods of Ponil. Some of us had never been on a horse but western saddles make it easy. That afternoon we hopped a bus for Headquarters, and the morning after, for Raton, and the train home. We arrived at Newtonville about four o'clock on Friday, July 29.

During the trip we not only made very good friends with members of our own wagon train, but met and talked with other scouts from 33 different states. It is certainly a highlight of the B.S.A. program for explorers all over the country.

Garbage Collections A Must

Residents of Farwell and North Streets, as well as adjacent streets, are streets, as well as adjacent streets, are up in arms and properly so. The Graphic, after having received several calls relative to the deplorable garbage collection system apparently existing here, believes it is time that residents be given service rather than official run-around at City

According to our information, garbage collections in that area occurred only 4 times in 45 lays! And this despite the terrific heat during this period.

Apparently calls relative to this condition made to City Hall were of no little avail. These residents claim they were referred from one department to another.

referred from one department to another, and back again. If that is so, then there is something wrong somewhere.

Garbage at its best is hardly conducive to good neighborhood odors but when it is allowed to collect, rot and create maggots during the record excessive hot weather, then the condition really becomes serious. Particularly so with so much polio in evidence.

We have every reason to believe that the complaints which have come to this office relative to this matter are justified.

If public officials have an explana-if public officials have an explana-tion for the deplorable condition which has been permitted to exist, then they should enlighten the public as to the rea-son. But better still, they should correct the situation immediately and see to it that garbage collections are made regularly and promptly.

Let Parking Alone

A petition with the Board of Aldermen would eliminate eight parking meters, re-establishment of angle parking, and an off-street parking area at Newton Centre. The area proposed for the re-moval of parking meters and establishment of angle parking, is so minute that it would appear advisable that the Board of Aldermen write a quick finish to this petition. It contains no general change throughout the city in parking methods which were established here some time

Even if it did, it should be quickly

Angle parking has been the cause of many an accident here. When it was in existence throughout the city, many a car owner came to grief. The establish-

Ireland's Apostle Patric (Patrick) ing was a decided improvement and has worked out extremely well here.

That one store owner, or a few for that matter, should want the parking situation changed in front of his establishment does not warrant the favorable consideration by the Board of Aldermen.
The main consideration is what is best for the city as a whole. And we believe that parallel parking and the establishment of parking meters has worked out very well, not only for the city and public, but for the merchants as well.

Let parking meters and parallel parking alone! Both have proved beneficial to the public at large and it is they who deserve the first consideration.

Getting Off the Hook

The recent action of the Legislature in giving increased power to officials of the cities and towns serviced by the Metropolitan Transit Authority, particularly in respect to fare increases, was a neat job. By such action, the legislators got rid of an almost perennial affair and have now put it up to those city and town officials who have been shouting loudest, for public consumption at least, to put up or shut up.

In a way this is too bad. Now the politicians in the district serviced by the MTA have had one of their best vote-getting squawks taken right from under Squawks taken right squawks them. What now can they talk about, come election time?

We are rather curious to watch the future actions of these officials. Will they now advocate increased fares to help reduce the annual deficit or will they advocate keeping fares down and let the property owners of their communities continue to take the beating?

What a political dilemma these loud-shouting public officials now find them-

As one wit remarked: "They asked for it, now let's see how 'expert' they are in solving the MTA problem which thus their attention and for the many letters and friendly comments nominate except Eisenhower.

There Is A Responsibility

Despite the number of different laws, in the various states, that require motorists to carry insurance or providing stiff penalties against those who do not, in most of the states in the country, irresponsible motorists are still causing heavy human and physical damage, without having to compensate for their acts.

Since most motorists drive through a number of states over a period of time, particularly at this time of the year, the problem is almost a national one. Although the effort to require motorists to carry insurance is supported by a large and growing number of people, the various states have not yet come up with this solution and, therefore, the highways are filled with irresponsible drivers, who do not have the financial means to compensate for the destruction they may at any various state legislatures do not wish to pass laws requiring motorists to carry insurance, then they should pass some sort of law which would protect the victim of the irresponsible motorists. There is no reason why any citizen should be allowed to take the highway with a ma-chine which might cause both death and destruction, in irresponsible hands, when he has neither the means nor the insurance to compensate for destruction which

This problem is not akin to the problem of normal crimes. Crimes cannot be predicted, nor are citizens given wholesale permits to carry guns and permission to shoot them at will.

However, the motorist is given a license to operate a vehicle which can cause death and if society is going to permit citizens to obtain these permits rather freely, it has the responsibility to protect those who fall victim to misuse.

they have sent. I have tried to make the reports interesting informative, and I hope an influence on the right side. Under the circumstances today's message will be in a some what more personal vein than usual, and I shall say a word about a Congressman's life.

The legislative work of Congress is such a broad and interesting field that there is a great temptation for a Member to focus his attention on it and forget other things. But this is a luxury which he cannot afford. He finds that the human problems brought to his attention by constituents are also full of interest. He discovers that there is a thrill and a satisfaction in helping a constituent over some roadblock in his relations with some activity of the federal government.

A Congressman's life involves much traveling. He must make frequent trips back to his district to appear at meetings and confer with constituents. Sometimes attendance at home at some special event will cause missing a roll call.

I am happy to report that with the assistance of airline travel, I was able to be on the House floor to answer 141 out of 147 roll calls during the session. Four of those which I missed were the less important "quorum calls," merely to determine those present.

Neither of the two votes which I missed were on vital matters. The vote in each case was extremely one-sided. I later stated my position for the record on both matters.

The most trying thing about a Congressman's life is the constant effort to fit more things in than there is really time for! Between attendance at committees and attendance on the floor of the House, one must sandwich in looking after mail at the office, seeing constituents, studying legislature measures, planning trips home, and writing speeches.

The days flow by all too swiftly. For me they begin with

It is satisfying to read the almost universal comments that the past session has been one of value to the public. There is a thrill in having a hand in placing on the statute books legislation which one feels will be helpful.

It is of course disappointing that several important measures sought by President Eisenhower were not favorably acted upon before adjournment. Among them are measures relating to

Political Overtones

Stevenson obviously gave them to understand that he will be a candidate, and he may have told them so definitely be-cause he issued a statement asserting that he would make known his political plans by the end of November.

In appraising the importance of the attitude of the Democratic Governors, it must be remembered that they invariably control the delegations from their States and are able to deliver votes to the Presidential candidate of their choice.

Democratic Senators and Congressmen wield considerable influence in a State such as Massachusetts where the Governor is a Republican and there is no recognized and undisputed head of the Democratic party. But where a Governor is sitting, he's invariably the boss as a result of the power of patronage he has at his disposal.

It was a group of Republican Gover-nors headed by Thomas E. Dewey of New York who stopped the Presidential drive of the late Robert A. Taft at Chicago in 1952 and swung the nomination to Eisenhower. But for the grip they maintained on their delegations, Taft and not Eisenhower would have been the GOP nominee for President three years ago.

It was a group of Democratic Governors, among them Paul A. Dever, who turned thumbs down on Estes Kefauver and maneuvered the '52 convention for Surprisingly little sentiment for New York's Governor Avirell Haffiman who, with Kefauver, is regarded as the top contender againste Stevenson, was found among the Democratic Governors gathered in Chicago.

Harriman is in the unique position of supporting Stevenson while at the same time seeking the nomination for himself. There were some indication at Chicago that this obvious hypocrisy is injuring the New York Governor and lessening whatever chances he may have.

The Governors made no secret of the fact that they consider Harriman a candidate and that they discount the statement he has made for Stevenson.

While they don't say so directly, the implication behind their remarks is that they would have more respect for Harriman, if he would make a forthright pronouncement of exactly where porting Stevenson while at the same time trying to advance his own cause.

New York political writers declare that Harriman apparently went to the Chicago conference with the idea of building his political fences but that there was a discermible swing away from him rather than to him.

While a majority of the Governors predicted that Stevenson will be nominated, they were privately not at all op-timistic that he would be able to defeat President Eisenhower, if conditions remain as they are today.

Two Democratic Governors, Robert E. Meyner of New Jersey and Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut, declared publicly, in answer to questions, that Eisensower would have a decided edge in their States unless there is a change in conditions. Other Democratic leaders said approximately the same thing privately.

The Democratic executives believe, incidentally, that President Eisenhower would retire from office, if he followed his own personal desires, but that the pressure from Republican politicians that he run again will be too great to resist.

They also offered the conviction that Stevenson would be a favorite to defeat I express appreciation to the readers of this column for any Presidential candidate the GOP could

> Several of the Republican Governo declared candidly that their party would be in danger of being torn apart by an internal struggle for power, in the event that Ike should step out, and they said that consideration alone would undoubt-ly weigh heavily with him.
> None of the GOP spokesmen had any real idea who their Presidential standard-> bearer might be, if Ike should fool them and refuse to run.

The 47th annual Conference of Governors at the Edgewater Beach Hotel produced a few political comments that left bitterness in their wake.

Of the 25 Democratic Governors on hand, 20 visited Stevenson at his farm. The five who did not make the 40-mile trip to Libertyville were all Southerners headed by Governor Allan Shivers of Texas who backed Eisenhower in 1952. Shivers displeased several of his colleagues by declaring that Stevenson lacks any qualideclaring that Stevenson Residency. fication whatever for the Presidency. Michigan's Governor G. Mennen liams angered the Republicans and caused even Democrats to wince, when he declared that President Eiserhower is an "old man" and might die before election.

That remark, considered in very poor taste by Democrats and Republicans alike, was a reference to Ike's own assertion that no President ever had reached the age of 70 in the White House and that his 70th

The Republican Governors themselves were concerned about President Eisenhower's allusion to his age and felt that it may prove a boomerang in next year's cam-

Adlai Stevenson sidestepped deftly when asked for a comment on Williams' remark. "A man is as old as he feels," said Adlai tactfully.

Reporters came away from the Chicago conference with the conviction that Adlai will formally announce himself a candidate for the Presidency in the late fall and will then wage an altogether different campaign than he did in 1952, when he was drafted, supposedly against his wishes.

Kennedy Possible Vice President Candidate

A number of Massachusetts Democrats, who are unenthusiastic about Adlai Stevenson, would adopt an altogether dif-ferent attitude toward him, if it is true, as reported, that his first choice as his Vice Presidential running mate would be Senator John F. Kennedy.

Kennedy's physical condition is a big question mark at the present time, but he has made so courageous a comeback since his operation last October that it is possible he might be able to accept a place on the Democratic national ticket a year from now.

Democratic prospects in Massachusetts would be improved tremendously, if Kennedy were the nominee for Vice President. Not only would there be a strong pos-sibility that Stevenson could carry the State over Eisenhower under such circumstances, but the Democrats also would have a much better chance of recapturing the Governorship.

A lot of water, of course, will flow under the bridge before the Democrats will start for Chicago for their convention in August of next year, but if Kennedy's health is such as to permit him to participate in a nation-wide campaign there is more than a remote likelihood that he will turn up as Stevenson's ticket mate.

The child's hand became entangled in the long hair at the end of the tail. The cow ran out of the barn and into a briar patch, dragging the boy behind it. Act Became Law 20 Years Ago

It was 20 years ago this week that the Social Security Act became law, Gerald J. Murphy district manager of the social security office, reminded people in this area.

Generally, when people refer to social security, they are talking about the old-age and survivors insurance program under the Social Security Act, he said. In commemorating the 20th Anniversary of the signing of this law, Mr. Murphy indicated how it is now affecting the lives of almost all of He stated that almost 8 million persons are now receiv-ing over 400 million dollars every month in benefits under the program. The average retired worker is now receiving about $60 a month. However, the average for those who have retired in the past few years is $80 a month and their wives' benefits month and their wives benefits average $41 a month. More-over, Mr. Murphy stated that an important part of the old-age and survivors insurance program is the protection given to widows and children in the event of the workers' death. To-day, the average benefit for a young widow with two minor children is $185 a month. Total family benefits can be as much as $200 a month. In addition, lump-sum death payments range from $90 to $255.

Looking ahead twenty years to 1975, Mr. Murphy predicted that by then 93 million Americans will be insured under the program. It is expected that of the 20 million persons over 65 at that time, 4 out of 5 will be eligible for benefits.

More than half of all American motorists appear to be ignorant of the real causes of automobile accidents which are responsible each year for more than 35,000 deaths and 1,250,-000 injuries on the highways of this country.

Chief among these are speeding too fast for conditions and uncontrolled speed, passing in the wrong place and in the wrong way, pulling in and out of traffic, mechanical failure of cars, failure to comply with the rules of the road and failure to heed traffic signs and sig-nals installed to aid traffic.

Scene's During Friday's Storm | Rawson Says Democrats Exclusive photographs taken for The Graphic by Gordon R. Have Done a Disservice Wilk during height of storm which struck Newton last Friday.

'The Democrats of the House of Representatives performed a most unwise and very unfortunate disservice to the public interest last week when they defeated at the enactment stage Governor Herter's request for a $150 million bond issue to complete the highway program," declared Representative George E. Rawson (Rgram," declared Representative George E. Rawson (R-Newton) in an interview this week.

Continuing his remarks, Rep. Rawson stated:

"Authoritative information shows that all but a small part of the bonds authorized for highway constitution." tion have either been paid or allocated to highways either built, in process of construction or about to be started.

"SINCE CONSIDERABLE time is taken necessarily for surveys, land takings and engineering before a highway can be commenced, the Department of Public Works must have the necessary funds in hand long in advance of the actual construction. Cutting off this bond issue will stop new needed highway work when the present work is done. It just drops the curtain down on highways.

'The demand for new highways is non-political Democrats as well as Republicans want new roads. The Registry of Motor Vehicles, concerned with the safety of the public, is anxious for better and safer roads. Business enterprise backs the nighway program. The farmer wants more roads and so does labor.

When Governor Bradford in 1948 submitted his Master Highway Plan, based on a survey by the Maguire Associates, he asked the General Court for a $100 million bond issue as the first step. A wilful group of 14 Demo-crats in the Senate contrived to prevent enactment, since a two-thirds vote of both branches is necessary to enact a bond issue. They wished to wait until they might be in power to spend such money, for highway contractors have long been known as a source of lush campaign contributions. This action was costly to the Commonwealth because highway construction cost less in 1948 than it

When Governor Dever asked for $200 million for highways in 1949 we Republicans could have played the same trick on him, but we chose the public interest instead and voted for his bond issue to start the program, really Bradford's program, going. The same course was followed when Dever asked a second $200 million in 1951.

When Governor Herter asked for $200 million in 1953 no

nounces her candidacy for re-election to the Newton School Committee from Ward 3.

Mrs. Whitmore states, "My in-terest in our schools is guided by the effort to find the answer to the question: "Are we giving our children the best education possible, in the light of present knowledge, to fit them to face successfully the world in which they are going to have to live?"

SHE CONTINUES: "It is most important that we keep our schools up to the standard to which Newton citizens have become accustomed. In order to do this the citizens must contin ue to elect members to the School Committee who will keep our schools free of any outside pressures. Newton citizens expect their representatives to be completely free to enunciate policy which, in their judgment, vill be best for the education of our children. The School Committee must be made up of responsible individuals acting in the best interests of the com-munity as a whole. Our children deserve the best we can give them."

"Our schools are faced with a critical teacher shortage in the next few years — a nation-wide problem. We want the best teachers we can get: so do other communities. It is inevitable that salary schedules will have to be reviewed continually in order to attract to Newton the new teachers we need and to keep those fine teachers we already have. Victory for Businessmen

The Post Office Department in Washington notified Congressman Laurence Curtis Tuesday that a new Nonantumbranch will be constructed under a twenty year lease to the Post Office Department by the Druss Building Constructing Company of 20 Middlesex avenue Somerville nue, Somerville.

THE NEW building will be constructed on the south side of Watertown street between Chapel and Cook streets. It will be a one story building constructed of brick and concrete blocks with 1,980 square feet on the first floor, with a basement of the same area.

The building will also have a loading platform of 300 square

Occupancy of the building is expected to take place in about five or six months.

ANNOUNCEMENT that a Nonantum post-office is now a certainty ends a long and diligent effort on the part of the Nonantum Businessmen's Association to secure for that section of Newton a post office of its own. The announcement that a building will now be built is in large measure due to the efforts of that association acting with the whole-heart-ed support of Congressman

Local Red Cross Disaster cess of reorganizing prepared-ness plans when "Connie" and "Diane" gave ample demonstra-tion of the real and continuing need. Everyone takes for granted the availability of Red Cross in time of great trouble. Here in Newton last week, we saw the preparedness people in action. Friday morning when the con-tinuing rains piled up unprece-dented flood waters, Mr. Leigh G. Packer, Disaster Chairman, rose to the occasion. Defeat of Highway Bond Issue by Democratic Chieftains Seen as Good Campaign Issue for GOP to Take to People

Those Democratic legislators who were persuaded to vote against the proposed $150,000,000 highway bond issue would do well to remember that they have but one political life to give for their party leaders.

There is little doubt but that the highway loan would have been overwhelmingly approved last week and that there would have been no need for Governor Herter to resubmit it a second time, if the members of the House of Representatives had been allowed to make their own decisions on the matter.

A handful of Democratic chieftains, however, chose to make an all-out fight on the issue, and they made it a question of party loyalty to vote against the loan which the Governor seeks to float in order to finance the construction of new roads in the Commonwealth

After cracking the whip and coaxing and threatening balky and unwilling members, the Democratic House leaders succeeded in blocking the passage of the bond issue by a single vote. That margin is significant because any one of the Democratic legislators recorded against the measure could be accused by his opponent of representing the dif-ference between passage and defeat of the loan order. POLITICAL OVERTONES (Continued on Page 4) bond issue.

Governor Herter provided an opportunity for the Democratic lawmakers to get off the hook by promptly sending back the bond issue and affording them a chance to vote on it a second time.

Many political observers considered that it might have been shrewder politics for the Governor to accept the defeat and protest to the people that a Democratic bloc in the House had been responsible for a holdup in the highway construction program. But Mr. Herter was more interested in carrying forward the roadbuilding program without interruption than in establishing a campaign issue for

It is a little difficult to figure out why Speaker Michael F. Skerry and his lieutenants decided to seek the defeat of the highway bond issue or what they hoped to accomplish from a political standpoint beyond proving that they could control a third of the votes in the House.

The explanation has been privately offered by some Democratic legislators that the reason they voted against the bond issue was that they believed its adoption would result in added Republican campaign funds for next year.

The implication behind their remarks is that the engineers engaged to design the roads and the contractors hired to build them probably would show their gratitude by making a contribution to the GOP campaign chest.

There may be some slight basis behind that Democratic apprehension. But it is not a consideration that will make much impression on the general public, and the Republicans usually don't en-counter too much difficulty in raising enough money to finance their campaigns.

The blunt fact of the matter is that public resentment over any slowdown in the State's road-building program is likely to do much more harm to the Democratic cause than the campaign contributions from engineers and con-tractors who might benefit from the highway program.

Governor Herter was not fooling when he declared in his message to the Legislature that there is no issue on which he would rather go to the people than the $150,000,000 loan order for the construction of new roads. And Democratic politicians realize that he meant exactly what he said.

Some observers read into the Govern or's message the inference that he may be a candidate for a third term next year. That is going a little far. Mr. Herter's future political plans are more likely to be shaped by President Eisenhower than by the Democratic members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

However, even though Mr. Herter decides to retire from office at the end of his present term, he still would be a major participant in the 1956 campaign, and his remarks would carry a good deal of weight.

Some of the Democratic legislators who yielded to the pressure of their party spokesmen and voted against the bond issue at the critical stage did so with considerable doubt and misgivings. That was evident from the manner in which they wavered and shifted as the measure was going through the legislative mills.

They are discovering now that their uncertainty was well founded and that their own constituents desire good roads on which to drive their automobiles.

Boston's fair-minded Mayor Hynes who first tried to work quietly behind the scenes to help achieve the passage of the highway loan, finally spoke out publicly to emphasize that he felt that legislators of his political party who voted against the measure were making a serious mistake.

A portion of the bond issue has been a portion of the bond issue has been earmarked to complete the building of the Central Artery across downtown Boston, a fact that seemingly has been overlooked by some of the Hub lawmakers.

Democratic legislators this year have frequently criticized the State public works department for not showing greater progress on its road-building program.

er progress on its road-building program. That criticism will carry an ironic ring, if the Democratic lawmakers themselves block the allocation of the necessary funds to continue the program without interruption.

From the standpoint of its direct effect upon the people, this is possibly the most important controversy that will be waged during the 1955 legislative session.

One of the surprises of the entire situation is that Speaker Skerry has been a party to the attempt to kill the bond issue. Skerry, in the opinion of this ob-
